Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

EXPLANATION OF DATA

This set of reports, "Business Establishments, Employment, and Taxable Pay Rolls, Under Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Program," presents statistics on reporting units, March 1948 employment, and January-March 1948 taxable wages covered under the program. Data for all counties are shown under the following 9 major headings: Agriculture, Forestry and Fishing; Mining; Contract Construction; Manufacturing; Public Utilities; Wholesale Trade; Retail Trade; Finance, Insurance, and Real Estate; and Service Industries. In addition, data for 158 separate industry classifications are shown for 426 counties. The business establishments which are covered account for about three-fourths of all wage and salary workers and their earnings, and thus include a major segment of the country's economy. Because the data were derived from employers' reports under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. The nature, scope, and other characteristics of the data are summarized in the following paragraphs.

I. DESCRIPTION OF TABLES

The entire series of bulletins includes five tables, as follows:

Table 1.—United States total data (including the 48 States, the District of Columbia, and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), classified by industry and size of reporting unit based on number of employees.

Table 2.—State data (each State, the District of Columbia, and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), classified by industry and size of reporting unit.

Table 3.—Data for 426 selected larger counties, classified by detailed industry breakdown and size of reporting unit.

Table 4.—Data for smaller counties, classified by nine broad industry divisions and size of reporting unit.

Table 5.—State employment—comparison of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance data with State unemployment insurance data.

These five tables and related material make up the two parts of the series, as indicated in the table of contents. Part I is a single bulletin containing Tables 1 and 2, whereas Part II consists of 49 separately bound bulletins, one for each of the 48 States and one for the District of Columbia and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, containing Tables 2, 3, 4, and 5.

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. Blank rows appear because space was allowed in each table for each specified industry, but tabulations showed no data for some industries. Taxable pay rolls are given in thousands of dollars. Pay-roll totals and subtotals are slightly higher than the sum of the individual components because the last three digits of all pay-roll figures were dropped for mechanical simplicity, without rounding, after the totals had been obtained. The United States totals in Table 1 for major industry group 44 (water transportation) include data for ships at sea, which are not included in the State and county tables. With these exceptions, the United States totals are consistent with the State and county figures.

The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combinations of neighboring counties in eight States, as shown in the following table:

State	Number of counties
	Total in State	Classified separately	Grouped
Georgia.....	159	66	93
Illinois.....	102	96	6
Kansas.....	105	93	12
Kentucky.....	120	84	36
Missouri.....	115	85	30
North Carolina...	100	98	2
Texas.....	254	39	215
Virginia.....	100	98	2

The five boroughs of New York City are combined into one group. The independent cities of Baltimore, Maryland, and St. Louis, Missouri, are treated as separate counties, whereas the 27 independent cities of Virginia are combined with the counties in which they are located.

Tables showing additional related data will be available later on request from the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. A list of these tables is included in Appendix B.

II. ESTABLISHMENTS COVERED

The data are based on employers' tax reports under the old-age and survivors insurance program. The Social Security Act defines covered employment as services performed by a worker for an employer within the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, or on, or in connection with, an American vessel, with certain specific exceptions. Major exclusions from coverage are: Self-employment; casual employment not in the course of the employer's trade or business; employment of a member of the employer's family; employment in agriculture (with minor exceptions as shown by the note on agriculture in Appendix A); domestic service in a private home; employment on a foreign vessel; employment by Federal, State or local government; employment in certain types of nonprofit organizations; railroad employment; employment by a foreign government or its instrumentality; employment as a student nurse or interne. Employment in fishing from small boats (see note on fishing in Appendix A) and employment on ships at sea, while covered by the Act, are included in these tabulations only in the United States Summary. Business establishments with one or more covered employees in January-March 1948 are included, while those with no covered employees in this period are excluded. It is estimated that, in March 1948, employment covered by the old-age and survivors insurance program comprised 75 percent of total wage and salary employment (excluding self-employment), as indicated in the following table derived from the Bureau of the Census current surveys of the population.

Distribution of Total Wage and Salary Workers, March 1947

Employment group	Percent
Total	100
Covered by old-age and survivors insurance	75
Agriculture	3
Domestic service	4
Government	12
Railroads, nonprofit institutions, and all other noncovered groups	6

III. COMPLETENESS OF TABULATIONS

The tables in these bulletins are based on employers' tax reports for the first quarter of 1948 received and processed by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance through the end of April 1949. Additional reports for this quarter have been received since that date, and more will be received in the future.

Thus, the data in these bulletins are not entirely complete. It is estimated that, for the United States as a whole, reports received after the closing of these tabulations will account for about 2.6 percent of the total number of reporting units, 0.6 percent of March 1948 employment, and 0.4 percent of total taxable pay rolls. Estimates of the total reporting units, employment, and taxable pay rolls, including those represented by reports received too late for inclusion in the tabulations will be available at a later date in tables listed in Appendix B. No corresponding estimates are published for individual counties.

IV. ITEMS TABULATED

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business, engaged in a single business activity, and operated by a single employer. In this respect it is the same as an establishment. In some cases, however, a reporting unit may consist of several establishments, where a single employer operates two or more establishments of the same business activity in a single county or State. This rarely occurs in the manufacturing industries, but sometimes occurs in retail trade, construction and service industries where a firm may operate many small branches or stores. Such establishments may then be grouped into county-wide or State-wide reporting units. Thus, while there is no effect on the national and State employment and wage aggregates, the data will show fewer establishments as a whole, and relatively more large establishments than there actually are.

Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15, 1948. The employment data are obtained from an informational item on the employer's tax return and, as in practically all statistical reporting programs, are not always fully and accurately reported. This results primarily from the following: (1) A considerable number of employers fail to report the mid-March employment figure; (2) some relatively few employers confuse the mid-March employment figure with the total number of persons employed at any time during the quarter and erroneously substitute the latter figure; and (3) multi-unit employers do not provide separate mid-March employment figures for their individual reporting units.

In processing the data, corrections are introduced to take the foregoing factors into account. On reports of employers with twenty or more workers which show mid-March employment equal to the number of employees during the quarter, the reported mid-March employment figures are assumed to be in error and are adjusted, as are those for which no employment figures are reported. The basis of these adjustments is the relationship of mid-March employment to the number of employees during the quarter shown by acceptable reports. Employment was adjusted in this manner for about 15 percent of total covered employment.

Multiunit employers do not provide separate mid-March employment figures for individual reporting units, but provide figures on number of employees during the quarter for each reporting unit. Therefore, total mid-March employment, which is reported for the concern as a whole, is distributed on the basis of the distribution of the number of employees during the quarter. In some cases where this is not feasible, employment is distributed on the basis of other available relevant information for the same employers.

Taxable pay rolls for January-March 1948, is the amount of taxable wages paid for covered employment during the quarter in the reporting units which are included in the tabulation. Taxable wages are all payments for covered employment including the cash value of noncash payments, up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. In general, all payments for covered employment in the first quarter are taxable unless the employee is paid at the rate of more than $12,000 per year by an employer. The proportion of total wages in covered employment which is taxable becomes smaller in the later quarters of the year, but for the first quarter of 1948 it is estimated that 96 percent of total earnings in covered employment was taxable.

V. CLASSIFICATIONS

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. For manufacturing units, postwar information was obtained in surveys taken in 1946 and 1947. For nonmanufacturing units which, according to the old-age and survivors insurance records, have existed without change in legal structure since 1942, the industry classification is based on a general survey made in that year. For units either newly formed or reorganized since 1942 or the latest survey, industry information was submitted at the time of formation or reorganization. The industry classification indicates the principal activity of the reporting unit. Data for the manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945. Data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code, prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. Some of the industry titles shown in the tables are abbreviated because of the limited space. Complete industry titles and some explanatory notes are given in Appendix A.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit which, subject to the qualifications mentioned above in the discussion of "reporting unit" in IV, "Items Tabulated," reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Units unclassified by county are designated in the tables as "State-wide." This classification includes reporting units without a fixed location within the State, or with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location. Employers who did not report nature of business information, or reported incomplete information, were shown as "unclassified" in the industry distributions. The following table presents the figures on unclassified data as a percentage of the United States totals.

Item	Unclassified by industry	Unclassified by county
Reporting units.....	1.3	1.6
Employment.....	.3	3.7
Taxable wages.....	.2	4.3

Size of reporting unit classifications are based on mid-March 1948 employment. The size "0" appears wherever the reporting units included in the data did not have any employees in the mid-March pay period, although they had at least one employee at some time during the quarter.

VI. REPRESENTATIVENESS OF FIRST QUARTER DATA

The data in this bulletin refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be used in assuming that the data represent either the "current" situation or the average for the year 1948. Table 5 in the State bulletins which shows State unemployment insurance data for March 1949 provides a basis for measuring the changes since March 1948. The data for industries which are subject to seasonal variation will obviously reflect the characteristics of employment and pay rolls in the winter months.

VII. COMPARABILITY WITH OTHER DATA

The principal value of the old-age and survivors insurance data included in these bulletins lies in the fact that they are industrially and geographically comparable because of the uniform coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance program and the consistency of the processing procedures, concepts and definitions. For many purposes these data are useful without recourse to additional information. However, in instances where it is found necessary to use these data in combination with statistics from another source, considerations of comparability as between the different series are important.

Old-age and survivors insurance data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947.—In general, the data in these bulletins are comparable with corresponding data published in the two earlier series of bulletins. However, there are several exceptions. The accompanying data include a larger proportion of employers' reports for the quarter, as described in "Section III—Completeness of Tabulations," than the 1946 or 1947 data. The first quarter 1948 tabulations include reports received through April 1949, whereas the 1946 and 1947 tabulations included only reports received through October 1946 and October 1947, respectively. The following table shows the percentages of reporting units, employment and taxable wages excluded from the 1946 and 1947 bulletins because of late-filed reports, in comparison with the present bulletin:

Item	Percent excluded from bulletins
	1946	1947	1948
Reporting units..	6.8	4.9	2.6
Employment.....	4.8	1.6	0.6
Taxable wages....	3.1	1.1	0.4

The industrial classification of many reporting units has been brought up to date, especially in the manufacturing industries. Some of these changes reflect preliminary results of coordination with the 1947 Census of Manufactures. It should be noted also that the data for the first quarter of 1946 for some counties and industries were seriously affected by several major work-stoppages while the 1947 and 1948 data were not appreciably affected by this condition.

Censuses of manufactures and business.—In many instances, the OASI data will be used in conjunction with data from the 1947 Census of Manufactures and the 1948 Census of Business. Since these publications will provide information on employment and business establishments (as well as other information), it is desirable, in order to guide users of these compilations, to explain the differences in the two sets of data.

The 1947 Census figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employment differ somewhat from the corresponding 1947 old-age and survivors insurance figures. The factors creating these differences can also be expected to affect the comparability between the 1947 Census figures and the 1948 old-age and survivors insurance figures beyond the differences resulting from the change in time period covered. In general, after the OASI data are adjusted for late reports, they are higher than the corresponding Census figures, although in many instances the differences are not significant. Coverage accounts for part of the difference; for example, the Census excludes logging camps, about 35,000 small sawmills, and manufacturing in Alaska and Hawaii, whereas these items are included in the old-age and survivors insurance data. Also excluded from the Census are central offices and auxiliary establishments of manufacturing concerns, where these activities are located in establishments separated from the manufacturing operations. There are additional differences in the manner in which units of multiunit concerns are reported to the two agencies. While the number of such differences is not large, the establishments themselves are often of considerable size, thus substantially affecting the figures for individual industries or counties.

Another reason for differences between the OASI 1947 data and the 1947 Census of Manufactures is the time period covered. The OASI data refer to manufacturing employment in March and establishments which reported taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census publications refer generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Obviously, in making any direct use of 1947 Census data in breaking down or otherwise supplementing 1947 or 1948 OASI data, the foregoing differences must be carefully considered.

A detailed comparison of the 1947 Census of Manufactures and the 1947 OASI employment and establishment data is being made in order to determine the factors that lead to the differences between the two series and the importance of each factor in contributing to differences. In addition, efforts are being made by both Bureaus to attain greater similarity between the Census and OASI data for manufacturing for future years, by using the same industry codes for identical manufacturing units, and developing the same reporting unit structure and similar definitions of coverage.

During 1950 the Bureau of the Census will publish the results of the Census of Business of 1948. In addition to data on sales, pay rolls, monthly employment—all classified by detailed kind-of-business—and information on form of organization and other topics, the Census publications will give statistics on the number and size-distribution of establishments and on employment. Differences between OASI and Census figures will arise because of differences in definition of the retail, wholesale, and service establishments included in both series. OASI reports cover only those businesses employing one or more workers at any time during the quarter, while there is no employment cut-off in the Census of Business. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is based on the new Standard Industrial Classification for Nonmanufacturing, whereas this classification was not available for use in the OASI first quarter 1948 tabulations. Similarly, the Census of Business obtains a separate report for each individual retail, wholesale or service establishment, whereas the OASI reporting unit often combines such establishments when operated by a single employer in the same county and the same industrial activity. This type of difference is particularly significant in connection with chain stores. As a result of differences in definition, coverage, and industrial classification, as well as in methods of collecting and tabulating the information, there may be significant differences in the number of reporting units shown in the OASI bulletins and the Census of Business.

Employment and pay-roll data under the State unemployment insurance program.—Employment and pay-roll data, similar in a number of respects to the statistics in these bulletins, are compiled by each of the 51 State and Territorial agencies which administer the State unemployment insurance system. These State data, and in many cases county or other local area data, are derived from the quarterly tax returns submitted by employers subject to the State unemployment insurance laws and are compiled by each State in accordance with uniform definitions and minimum standards established by the Bureau of Employment Security of the Department of Labor. In 36 States the coverage of the unemployment insurance law is less complete than that of the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program, because of the exemption of small firms.

The State unemployment insurance data are tabulated each quarter and are available within a few months after the end of each quarter. They thus provide more current information on employment and pay rolls by State and industry (and in some cases by county) than the data included in these bulletins. The State series, moreover, provide employment data for each month of the quarter. Information is also obtained on the total pay roll of covered employers, including nontaxable as well as taxable wages. On the other hand, the information published by the State agencies is not uniform from State to State with regard to the industrial and county details shown, nor with regard to minimum size of reporting unit covered. In particular, few State agencies classify their employment and pay-roll records by size of reporting unit.

To permit the direct comparison of employment data from both State unemployment insurance and Federal old-age and survivors insurance sources, and to provide the users of these bulletins with the more recent data available from State agencies, Table 5 included at the end of each State bulletin presents March 1948 employment from both sources, together with unemployment insurance figures for March 1949, classified by major industry group. As these tables indicate, there are differences between the corresponding March 1948 old-age and survivors insurance and unemployment insurance employment figures. These are due to differences in coverage; differences in the data reported by employers to the Federal and State agencies; differences in methods of processing and adjusting the data; and differences in the proportion of employer returns (and their corresponding employment) unclassified by industry. Attempts are being made to bring the two sets of data for future periods into closer agreement.

Current Bureau of Labor Statistics and State estimates of employment and pay rolls.—In cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Bureau of Employment Security, most State unemployment insurance agencies, and certain other State agencies, provide monthly employment estimates by industry, still more current than the above, based on the State unemployment insurance data and a sample of employers. These estimates are periodically adjusted by use of State unemployment insurance data supplemented by small-firm data from old-age and survivors insurance and other sources. A number of States prepare similar estimates for selected local areas.

The March 1948 estimates of these series for comparable industry groups, which are published by both the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the State agencies, may differ from the corresponding old-age and survivors insurance figures for a number of reasons. There may be differences in level within national and State figures, because the Bureau of Labor Statistics' estimates are adjusted to unemployment insurance levels which may differ from those shown by the old-age and survivors insurance data. There may be additional differences in the figures for those States in which adjustments have not been made to the latest unemployment insurance data at the time of publication.

Census Bureau estimates of employment and unemployment.—In its Current Population Surveys, the Bureau of the Census obtains monthly data on the number and characteristics of employed and unemployed persons. The results are published in the Monthly Report on the Labor Force and other reports. Comparison with the old-age and survivors insurance data is possible only on the basis of national totals for very broad industry groups. These Census statistics serve different purposes and are expected to differ from the old-age and survivors insurance data for a number of reasons. First, the employment statistics based on the population surveys include self-employed, agricultural, domestic service, and unpaid family workers, and other employed persons not covered by old-age and survivors insurance. Second, the population statistics on employment include persons having jobs during the survey period but temporarily away from them, whereas only part of this group is likely to be included in employment figures based on employer reports. Third, the population statistics provide information about the major job of each worker. There is no duplication in these data, each worker being counted only once in his major industry, whereas in the old-age and survivors insurance data an employee who worked for more than one employer during the mid-March pay period may be counted more than once. In addition, there are various reasons for differences in the two series of data associated with the different kinds of reporting systems used; differences in the time period to which the reports refer; sampling variations in the population figures, which are based on sample surveys; and differences in industrial classification resulting from the fact that the population information is obtained from respondents in the workers' households, whereas the old-age and survivors insurance industrial classification is based upon detailed information provided by each employer.

APPENDIX A.--COMPLETE TITLES OF INDUSTRIES AND EXPLANATORY NOTES

Industry classifications were generally described in Section V (Classifications) of "Explanation of Data." In this appendix, complete titles of industries for which data are given in the tables are listed with code numbers and explanatory notes. Many of the notes explain the nature of the accompanying data in industries which were only partially covered by the O.A.S.I. program in 1948. These notes are intended to serve as an aid in interpreting data and do not constitute a precise statement of the law. The industry classification indicates the principal activity of the reporting unit. Administrative offices or auxiliary units which may be located apart from the related operating unit are classified according to the principal industrial activity of the operating units which they administer or to which they are auxiliary. Separate sales offices, however, are classified in trade. Employees engaged in force-account construction (work done by operating companies for themselves) are classified in the principal nonconstruction activity which is being or will be conducted at the site.

Industry code
	AGRICULTURE, FORESTRY, AND FISHING Employment covered under O.A.S.I. excludes agricultural labor and much other employment in establishments classified in this division. However, some types of employment are covered even when carried on in establishments in this division whose principal employment is not covered. In such a case, the establishment is classified according to its principal activity, taking into account all of its activities, including those in which the employment is not covered. Thus, the data in the agricultural classification largely represent secondary, nonagricultural activities. In addition, there are some types of establishments, such as commercial kennels, which are statistically classified as agricultural, but whose entire employment is legally defined as nonagricultural and is therefore covered.
01	Farms In addition to farms, includes some types of greenhouses, nurseries, kennels, etc.
07	Agricultural and similar service establishments Agricultural, animal husbandry, and horticultural services, and hunting, trapping and game propagation. Some of these services are covered only when not performed on farms. Employment in the ginning of cotton or hatching of poultry is not covered.
08	Forestry Timber tracts, forest nurseries, reforestation services, gathering of gums, barks and other forest products, other forest services. The gathering of oleorosin from living trees or of maple syrup is not covered.
09	Fishing Commercial fishing, charter boats for pleasure fishing, oyster farms, tonging or dredging oysters, gathering sponges, seaweed, etc., fish hatcheries and fishing preserves. These activities are covered if carried on from land, from vessels of ten or more tons, or commercially for salmon or halibut. Fishing from small boats (less than ten tons) is not covered except commercial fishing for salmon and halibut.
	MINING The mining division includes extraction of minerals from the earth and some services related to mining. Related services are included with each major group.
10	Metal mining Extraction of metal ores.
11	Anthracite mining Properly includes mines located only in five counties in Pennsylvania. Administrative offices or auxiliary establishments may be in other areas. Mines located in other areas occasionally report that they are mining anthracite; a few of these have not yet been investigated and reclassified.
12	Bituminous and other soft-coal mining. Mining any type of coal except Pennsylvania anthracite.

13 Crude petroleum and natural gas production
Producing crude petroleum and natural gas from wells.

14 Nonmetallic mining and quarrying
Mining and quarrying stone, sand, gravel, clays, rock salt, gypsum, phosphate rock, pyrites, sulphur, ceramic and refractory materials, and other nonmetallic minerals.

CONTRACT CONSTRUCTION
This division includes only those firms engaged in the construction business which work on a contract basis for others. Adjusted data include reports received after April 1949, and estimates of all reports for the quarter expected to be received. Adjusted data for prior years included in time series tables are similarly derived.

3/ In these data, the employer or firm is a legal entity for old-age and survivors insurance purposes, such as a corporation, partnership, individually owned business, etc.

4/ In these data, the reporting unit is an establishment or group of establishments into which a legal entity may be subdivided on geographical or industrial lines.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "Statewide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "Statewide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "Statewide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "State-wide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "Statewide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "State-wide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.

Foreword

The series of bulletins of which this report is a part presents statistics on the number of business establishments covered by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program in the first quarter of 1948, the number of their employees, and the amount of taxable wages paid. These statistics, by county and industry, provide data for comparing and ranking local areas in terms of their economic importance, and thus are useful for analyzing market potentials, measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs, and other business planning. The series includes one bulletin (Part I) which contains an explanation of the data and a United States summary giving data by States, and 49 State bulletins, including one for the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii (Part II) presenting county data. This series continues the publication program initiated two years ago with the issuance of a similar series of bulletins for the first quarter of 1946. The 1948 series provides detailed data for a larger number of counties than the 1946 or 1947 series, but shows the same industrial detail as the latter.

Since these data are derived from employer's tax returns (Form SS–1a) under the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are limited to the coverage of that program. In addition to this limitation, the data are subject to certain other qualifications arising out of the character of the administrative process of which they are a byproduct. Both types of limitations are discussed more fully in the text of Part I and should be carefully noted by users of the data.

First quarter 1948 data are presented in these bulletins because they are the most recent which can be published before the close of the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the first quarter wages are least affected by the provision which limits wages subject to taxation to the first $3,000 received by a worker in a year from any one employer in covered industries.

These bulletins were planned jointly by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and the Office of Domestic Commerce. The tabulations and qualitative analysis of the data were made by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance under the supervision of O. C. Pogge, Director. The individual bulletins were assembled and edited in the Market Research Section of the Marketing Division of the Office of Domestic Commerce in consultation with the Division of Program Analysis of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The combined financial assistance of the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Commerce made possible the tabulation of these data.

TABLES OF ADJUSTMENTS

Tables of adjustments in the published data, which reflect information received too late for inclusion in these tabulations, are available on request to the Office of Domestic Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.; any Department of Commerce Field Office; or the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Baltimore 2, Md. While the over-all differences generally would not cause any significant discrepancies in practical application, there will be instances in more precise uses where the differences in a single industry in a particular county could be important.

Summary Description of Data

For more complete explanation of coverage, classification, comparability, and qualifications of the data in this bulletin, see Part I, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary"

These reports present a broad picture of the business and industry of the Nation as a whole, as well as of individual States and counties, for use in marketing, sales, advertising, employment and other analyses. Successful use of the data, however, depends upon a good understanding of their coverage, classifications, comparability, and qualifications. Some of the more important of these points are summarized here, but for a more complete description necessary for comprehensive application of the statistics, the user should refer to the section on "Explanation of Data" in Part I of the set.*

Data for 426 larger counties are classified by 158 separate industry groups and for all counties by 9 major industry break-downs. The 426 larger counties are selected primarily on the basis of total number of all establishments, but some of the remaining counties for which complete detail is not shown may contain significant concentrations of certain industries and trades.

Because the data are derived as a byproduct of the administration of the old-age and survivors insurance program, they are subject to the qualifications associated with the legal provisions of the program and related procedures for administering it. Some of the more important qualifications are as follows:

Employment and pay-roll data for industry classifications containing only one or two reporting units for a State or county are not shown separately, although included in totals and subtotals. The number of reporting units, however, is always shown. The county coding system provides for a maximum of 99 counties in any one State. This requires combination of counties in eight States. A business establishment is covered under the program if it had one or more covered employees at any time during a reporting quarter. Covered employment is defined as services performed by a worker for an employer in the continental United States and Alaska and Hawaii, with certain exceptions, the major ones being self-employment, family employment, casual employment, agricultural employment, domestic service, Government employment, railroad employment, and employment by certain types of nonprofit organizations. Business establishments with no covered employees at any time in the quarter are not included in the data. This exclusion may be particularly important in connection with retail and service establishments. A few establishments, generally small, and their employment and taxable wages, are excluded from the data, because their reports were received too late for the tabulations.

A reporting unit is normally a single place of business and, in this respect, is the same as an establishment. However, in some cases one reporting unit may consist of several establishments. Employment for mid-March 1948 represents the number of employees in covered employment during the pay period ending nearest March 15. There are, however, some variations in the methods of reporting which should be considered in the more precise uses of the data. Taxable pay rolls, January–March, cover payments up to the first $3,000 paid to any one employee by any one employer during the year. Payments exceeding this amount are not taxable.

Industry classifications are based on nature-of-business information supplied by the employers. Data for manufacturing industries are classified according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual prepared by the Bureau of the Budget in 1945, and the data for the nonmanufacturing industries are classified according to the Social Security Industrial Classification Code prepared by the Federal Security Agency in 1942. A complete understanding of the classifications listed in the reports requires reference to those manuals or to the description given in Appendix A of Part I of this set.

County classifications are based on the location of the reporting unit, which reflects the location of the establishment in which the workers are employed. In certain instances, however, notably in retail trade, construction, and service industries, a firm may operate many branches which, in some cases, may be grouped into county-wide or even State-wide reporting units.

Unclassified reporting units are shown in both the county and industry distributions. Those reporting units without fixed location within the State, with employees in more than one county, or of unknown county location, but which may be known as to industry, are listed as "Statewide" at the end of Table 4. These units are not important in the United States as a whole but they might be relatively important in a particular industry or county.

The data in these bulletins refer only to the first quarter of 1948. Caution should be exercised in assuming that they are representative of the entire year. In industries with a pronounced seasonal variation, such as canning, lumbering, and department store trade, the data obviously will reflect only the conditions for the first quarter of the year.

In general the data for the first quarter of 1948 are comparable with the corresponding data for the first quarters of 1946 and 1947. However, there are several exceptions due to improved procedures, revised classifications, and more complete data.

When data from other sources are used in conjunction with the present data, careful examination should be made of the classifications used, particularly when the terminology is similar, in order to detect any significant differences in definition. The 1947 Census of Manufactures figures on the number of manufacturing establishments and employees differ somewhat from the corresponding OASI figures. Coverage accounts for some of the difference. Another reason for differences is the time period covered, as the OASI manufacturing data refer to employment in March and establishments reporting taxable wages for the first quarter of the year, while the Census refers generally to average monthly employment and to manufacturing establishments which operated at any time during the year. Sometime during 1950 the Census of Business for 1948 (service and distribution trades) will be published. Differences between the OASI and Census figures may be found because of coverage differences, particularly for retail, wholesale, and service establishments. Other differences will occur because the kind-of-business classification used by the Census of Business is not the same as that used in the OASI tabulations.

The above and other qualifications are more fully explained in Part I of the set, "Explanation of Data and United States Summary," which also includes a description of the industry classifications. Although it is thought advisable to place considerable emphasis upon the qualifications of these data, it is believed, nevertheless, that this information when properly used will provide one of the best currently available and reasonably up-to-date bases for analyzing markets, laying out sales territories, allocating advertising appropriations, and making employment and other studies that depend upon having a complete and comprehensive geographical picture of business and industry.
